Part IV—Section 2

Tamil Nadu Acts and Ordinances

The following Ordinance which was promulgated by the Governor on the 1st October 2022 is hereby published for general information:—

TAMIL NADU ORDINANCE NO. 4 OF 2022.

An Ordinance to prohibit Online gambling and to regulate Online games in the State of Tamil Nadu.

WHEREAS during the recent years online gaming addiction has led many persons to incur unsustainable debt resulting in suicides;

AND WHEREAS addiction to online games have caused financial distress and ruined many families;

AND WHEREAS gaming disorder, predominantly online, has been recognized and included by the World Health Organisation (WHO), in its International Classification of Diseases (11th Revision), which is characterised by a pattern of persistent or recurrent gaming behaviour and is, manifested by impaired control over gaming, increasing priority given to gaming over other activities and continuation of gaming despite the occurrence of negative consequences in personal, family, social, educational, occupational or other important areas of functioning;

Tamil Nadu Act
1 of 2021.

AND WHEREAS the Hon'ble High Court of Madras by Common Order dated 03.08.2021 in W.P. No.18022 of 2020, etc, struck down Part II of the Tamil Nadu Gaming and Police Laws (Amendment) Act 2021, which banned wagering or betting in cyber space, as ultra vires the Constitution, with liberty to bring in an appropriate legislation conforming to the constitutional sense of propriety in the field of betting and gambling by the State;

AND WHEREAS the Government constituted a Five Member Committee under the Chairmanship of retired Hon'ble Justice Thiru K. Chandru to advise on enacting a fresh legislation on online games;

AND WHEREAS the Committee in its report, taking into account the parameters of physical space of operation, time of playing, players' relationship with other players, addiction level, amount of money involved, level of economic activity, scale of organisers' profit and role of credit, has observed that online version of any game cannot be compared with the offline version of the game, except in cases of word games or board games not involving any random outcome generator;

AND WHEREAS the said report further states that in the case of online version of games including online rummy, the algorithm for the random generators are known to the developers and hence are pseudo random generators; such games can be played with bots (an autonomous program or character designed to interact with systems or users); no mechanism is available for auditing the centralised server architecture of the gaming systems; and artificial intelligence can be used to manipulate the games and lure the players into continued indulgence;

AND WHEREAS the said report classifies the online games, into two types, namely, one which have minimal or negligible randomness factor and another having random event or count generators which are pseudo random and are addictively designed and accordingly recommends to regulate the former and to ban the latter;

AND WHEREAS in a recent survey conducted by the Government among more than two lakh teachers of the School Education department, to study the effects of online games on school students, more than seventy four per cent. of the teachers responded that concentration of students is impacted, sixty seven per cent. of the respondents said that they noticed eye defects, more than seventy four per cent. of them said they noticed decrease in intelligent quotient, writing skills and creativity of students, more than seventy six per cent. said they have noticed significant decrease in self esteem of students, more than seventy seven per cent. said they have noticed increase of anger in students and more than seventy two per cent. said they have noticed indiscipline among students;

AND WHEREAS the Government, on seeking the view of the general public on the proposed legislation, more than ninety nine per cent. that is, 10,708 out of the total 10,735 mails received, have requested for imposing a total ban on online games;

AND WHEREAS seventeen stakeholders comprising of representatives from the online gaming industry, think tanks, political parties, players association and social activists, who were provided an opportunity to express their views in person, have put forth various suggestions and requests to the Government, such as, to allow self regulation by the industry themselves, regulation by the Government, to differentiate real money games and other forms of games, to provide age and money restrictions, to ban advertisements, to prevent money laundering, to provide grievance redressal mechanism and to provide a total ban on online games;

AND WHEREAS it is considered that the issues of online gaming and gambling cannot be dealt with by the old binary of game of chance versus game of skill and a new conceptual framework is needed which incorporates understanding of how information technology operates at basic level, the critical difference between physical and online in general and also between physical and online versions of games;

AND WHEREAS it is an established scientific fact that true random outcome is not feasible in a software and any randomness will depend upon the specific algorithm written by the developer and that audit of the algorithm makes it difficult to detect any hidden algorithm designed to favour the game provider and that overlay of artificial intelligence in the online gaming can make the gaming scenario completely unfair to the game player/customer, with the game service provider / facilitator literally being able to hold all the cards; and that no scientifically validated algorithm for testing of even pseudo randomness is available at present;

AND WHEREAS due to the inherent addictiveness by design of the online games and the money being put in by the game players, the complete gaming scenario amounts to an exploitative, addictive service, causing not only health hazards but also social and economic harm of epidemic proportions;

AND WHEREAS many research studies on the effects of online gambling and online gaming addiction on youth, have highlighted negative effects such as development of aggressive behaviour, poor eye sight, reduced concentration, diminished analytical thinking, decreased productivity and hence should be viewed as a potent vice that would affect the long term prospects of the State and its population;

AND WHEREAS the ruining of families and suicide deaths due to online gaming addiction affects public health, disturbs social order and prejudices the maintenance of public order;

AND WHEREAS the Government, after careful consideration of the report of the said Committee, the findings of the survey among school teachers, research studies on the subject, and the views of the stakeholders and the general public, have decided to enact a law to prohibit online gambling and to regulate online games in the State;

AND WHEREAS the Legislative Assembly of the State is not in session and the Governor of Tamil Nadu is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action for the purposes hereinafter appearing;

NOW, THEREFORE, in exercise of the powers conferred by clause (1) of Article 213 of the Constitution, the Governor hereby promulgates the following Ordinance:-

THE SCHEDULE.

[See section 23]

Online Games of Chance

- (1) Rummy
- (2) Poker

1st October 2022.

R.N. RAVI,
Governor of Tamil Nadu.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT.

The State has the responsibility to protect the mental health of citizens and to guard against the ill-effects of gambling in any form, including betting. In this light, the State has maintained a long-standing policy of prohibiting in-person gambling and betting as reflected in the Tamil Nadu Gaming Act, 1930 (Tamil Nadu Act III of 1930) and the Chennai City Police Act, 1888 (Tamil Nadu Act III of 1888). The spread of online gaming, especially addictive online games and gambling games played via the Internet, threatens to undo the efforts of the State. Firstly, gambling by means of electronic communication is available at all hours, from any place, and to any person who is able to access a device capable of remote communication. Secondly, online gambling often involves players competing with non-human/virtual participants, which are controlled by a variety of computer algorithms. The degree of chance or skill involved in such remote games cannot be assessed independent of the relevant algorithm or program. Lastly, remote gambling often takes place by means of virtual currencies and tokens, bypassing the State's financial surveillance. Thus the online gambling considerably affects mental health of the people and has left many families in financial distress, and would affect the long term prospects of the State and its population.

2. Similarly, studies show that other online games not involving gambling and betting also have negative consequences in personal, family, social, educational, occupational or other important areas of functioning of common people. Further, the school students are also affected by these games resulting in decreasing Intelligent Quotient, writing skills and creativity.

3. Thus, online gambling and online games are addictive in nature and increase the threat to public order manifold, while posing difficulties in terms of designing appropriate regulation. A Committee headed by retired High Court Judge Thiru K.Chandru, which was constituted to advise the Government on enacting a fresh legislation on online games, has in its report, taking into account various parameters has observed that online version of any game cannot be compared with the offline version of the game, except in cases of word games or board games not involving any random outcome generator and that online games of chance involving random generators are known to the developers and hence are pseudo random generators; such games can be played with bots; no mechanism is available for auditing such gaming systems; and artificial intelligence can be used to manipulate the games and lure the players into continued indulgence.

4. On careful consideration of the report of the said Committee, the findings of a survey among school teachers on the effects of online games on Government school students, research studies on the subject and the views of the stakeholders and general public and after having examined various legislative options at its disposal, the Government have decided to prohibit online gambling and to regulate online games.

5. The Ordinance seeks to give effect to the aforesaid decision.

(By Order of the Governor)

C. GOPI RAVIKUMAR,
Secretary to Government (Legislation), Law Department.
