STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Andhra Pradesh is the pioneer State in fish production and consumption in India. The State has a rich resource-base of water bodies, both inland fresh water coastal marine/brackish waters that sustain a sizeable fishery forming the basis of livelihood of 1.63 lakh fishermen families. There are 353 fish landing centres spread over 555 fishing villages along the coastline extending to 974 k.m. Over last two decades, a rapidly growing Indian Economy has led to a huge demand for an educated and skilled labour force. Privatization of higher education is especially noticeable in higher education professional courses. There is urgent need to increase the involvement of private parties in fisheries sector especially in education and research.

The Andhra Pradesh Fisheries and Ocean University (Establishment and Regulation) Bill, 2017 aims to meet the demands of fisheries education and training in India and to create adequate infrastructure for generation of man power projected for future needs of the sector. The main objects of this University is:-

- (a) For improving the manpower availability for fisheries and aquaculture to meet the human resource needs and targeted production estimates.
- (b) For revamping the fisheries education, and research infrastructure facilities in the State including up-gradation of the available facilities, introduction of world class facilities through a multi discipline approach and international linkage.
- (c) To develop fisheries sciences and technology to stream line fisheries education, research and extension services in view of the greater significance of fisheries and aquaculture sector in the State's economy.

Accordingly, it has been decided to introduce the bill for establishment "Fisheries and Ocean University".

The Bill seeks to give effect to the above decisions.
